

As part of their ongoing campaign to improve customer service and provide a 'one stop shop' Micro Electronic Services is delighted to announce the recruitment of Dave Stanton as a monitor and power supply repair specialist. Dave, who has been poached from one of the country's leading companies within the Audio Visual and Video Conferencing markets brings with him a wealth of experience from this industry.

Paul Boxall, Managing Director of Micro Electronic Services says "Since the beginning of this year Micro Electronic Services has expanded significantly and at the same time has improved turnaround times on coin mechanisms and note readers. As Dave will be dedicated to the repair of monitors and power supplies this will enable Micro Electronic Services to improve turnaround times on this product range.

Dave says "I am looking forward to working for Micro Electronic Services in the Gaming and Amusement industry. My experience covers a wide range of monitors and Audio Visual equipment so the products I have to work on should not be too daunting. However I'm sure the industry will present me with some new and interesting challenges".
